ASEAN-India Fellowship for Higher Education in Agriculture and Allied Sciences

Guidelines

1. Objectives

India and the member states of Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) have immense potential for agriculture cooperation as ASEAN and India share lots of similarities in terms of agro-climatic zones. In line with Medium-Term Plan of Action (2021-2025) for ASEAN-India Cooperation in Agriculture and Forestry, a fellowship programme ASEAN-India Fellowship for Higher Education in Agriculture and Allied Sciences for higher agricultural education and research has been initiated. This fellowship is particularly for Masters Programme in new and emerging areas of common interests for complimenting strengths and harnessing potential in different areas of Agriculture and Allied sciences. This will help students from ASEAN Member States in getting quality research-based education, thus bringing India and ASEAN community closer to one another and provide platform for cross-cultural and transnational sharing of knowledge amongst the students coming from ASEAN countries.

The proposed fellowship will benefit in following two ways:

- (i) Support students of ASEAN nationality to pursue Masters Degree in agriculture and allied sciences, in the identified priority areas as per need, in the best Indian Agricultural Universities under the Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR) and Agriculture Universities (AU) systems, having strong research and teaching capabilities.
